Resources

THE AMESBURY LEARNING ENVIRONMENT

Amesbury School has fluid and organic environments to allow real learning to take place. Characteristics of our indoor learning environments include:

- Uncluttered, orderly
- Calm, welcoming
- Open, flexible - able to be designed and redesigned, configured and reconfigured by students and teachers
- Sense of spaciousness and good sightlines
- Efficient – quick and easy transitions and reconfigurations
- An environment that supports and enables a wide range of learning activities and learning styles
- Strong links between the indoor and outdoor spaces
- Enabling people to connect together in different ways – real and virtually
- Multiple display systems – teacher and student controlled

Standard classroom furniture is not evident in the hubs (learning areas). Rather, each hub (which has several spaces - called suites - and a range of possible configurations) is furnished to accommodate learners in a variety of contexts across the space and utilise a range of furniture to facilitate this. Teachers do not “own” a particular area of the hub; they work with a range of students in a range of spaces across the hub over the course of the day. Furniture choices not only reflect this way of working, but encourage it.

SCHOOL FACILITIES

Amesbury School has a large hall, library, large meeting room, teachers’ workrooms, media room and parents’ area with coffee making facilities. Our grounds include two playgrounds, two courts, a three quarter length soccer pitch, bike tracks including a skills and pump track and a wetlands area. Inside, our hall has a half size basketball court and hoop, and is marked out for two badminton/volleyball courts. Sports equipment is available to play with during breaks and students can bike or scooter to school, with bike/scooter parks made available during school time.

All students will have access to devices such as Chromebooks and iPads as required for their learning.

STAFFING

Amesbury has a staff of hard-working and dedicated teachers, committed to developing personalised learning for each student to help them develop what it means to be fully human. Meet all our staff members here.

Every student at Amesbury School has a whānau teacher, who is the first point of contact for both student and parent for education-related questions. The whānau teacher proactively manages the student’s wellbeing and academic progress.

International students will be given a 24 x 7 staff contact person while they are enrolled at Amesbury School.

ENGLISH AS A SECOND LANGUAGE

Amesbury School currently welcomes student with all levels of English, there are no English language proficiency requirements. Our ESOL lead teacher is Associate Principal, Angela Johnston. Angela oversees a diverse group of English second language students at Amesbury.

International students will partake in four ESOL sessions a week. These will be run separately from main learning programmes, but primarily, international students will remain in the main learning environment with their peers as much as possible. This helps them settle in and integrate into the school quickly.

In the community, within easy walking distance, there is also a tennis club and a community centre offering after school and weekend classes for adults and children.

Amesbury International Student Orientation & Support

Upon enrolment, each student is assigned a whānau teacher. Whānau means “family” in Te Reo Māori, and the whānau teacher will be your student’s primary support contact during their time at Amesbury School. Parents are encouraged to communicate with the whānau teacher for questions and concerns.

In addition, each international student will be assigned a “buddy” from the same year group to support their transition into their new school and cultural environment.

Amesbury School has a strong ESOL programme and international students will participate in the programme, alongside domestic students requiring ESOL support. This will provide additional support to all international students.

We believe that supporting the parents of international students is also very important. Caregiving parents of international students will be “buddied” up with another parent from the school and will be encouraged to participate in the school community. Because of the diverse nature of the Amesbury School population, we may be able to provide parents with first language support.
